Re: Notice of Ex Parte Presentation in MB Docket Nos. 15-216, 14-50, 10-71, 09-182, and 07-294

Dear Ms. Dortch:

On November 4, 2015, representatives of Raycom Media, Inc. (“Raycom”) met with Commissioner Pai and his Chief of Staff, Matthew Berry, to discuss various matters relating to the above-referenced dockets. Raycom was represented by Paul McTear, President and CEO; Susana Schuler, Senior Vice President for Television; Pat LaPlatney, Senior Vice President; Rebecca Bryan, Senior Vice President and General Counsel; and the undersigned counsel.

The purpose of the meeting was to explain how the Commission’s rules and policies relating to program exclusivity, retransmission consent, and local television ownership may help or hinder the ability of broadcasters like Raycom to serve their communities by investing in high-quality local news and other content.

Raycom’s representatives described how Raycom, an employee-owned company, serves the public not only by producing about 1,300 hours of news per week across its stations, but also by providing extended coverage of major events such as the recent flooding in South Carolina, by airing fundraisers to support its communities in the aftermath of natural disasters and other tragedies, and by producing specials such as a Raycom-produced documentary marking the 50th anniversary of the Selma March, which aired this past winter on all of Raycom’s stations and nationally on the Bounce network. Raycom provided copies of a document (attached hereto as Attachment A) highlighting some of Raycom’s extensive public service efforts over the past year.

Raycom’s representatives explained that this commitment to local service is a key distinguishing feature of the local broadcast model, a model that is supported by — and relies upon — the partnership between national networks and local affiliates. The Commission’s exclusivity and retransmission consent rules support this partnership, and the economic viability of locally oriented broadcasting, by allowing broadcast stations to obtain enforceable exclusivity rights from their networks and to negotiate fair, market-based compensation for the retransmission of valuable broadcast content. Raycom’s representatives noted that out of hundreds of retransmission consent negotiations, the company has reached an impasse with an MVPD only three times. Raycom also noted that the great majority of impasses involve only a few large MVPDs and often appear to be driven largely by an MVPD’s apparent desire to use the dispute as “evidence” of a need for government intervention on behalf of MVPDs in retransmission consent negotiations. In Raycom’s experience, however, the existing retransmission consent regime is working exactly as Congress intended and is a critical source of the revenue stations need to invest in high-quality news and other local content.

Finally, Raycom’s representatives explained that the Commission could further contribute to a healthy system of local broadcasting by updating its local television ownership rules, particularly in the smaller markets where stations are most vulnerable to economic downturns and where they could most benefit from the additional stability and cost-sharing that multiple ownership could enable. Incongruously, the Commission’s outdated rules continue to view virtually any consolidation among broadcast television stations as a threat, even as competitive cable and over-the-top platforms proliferate and as the Commission itself approves far more significant consolidation among MVPDs, such as the recently approved merger between AT&T and DIRECTV. The public interest in localism, diversity, and competition in the modern video marketplace would be better served by ownership rules that bolster stations’ ability to invest in producing the freely accessible local news and other community-focused content that broadcasters are uniquely positioned to provide.

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Jennifer Johnson

WCSC coverage of the Charleston Shooting and fundraising efforts
On June 17th, an unthinkable tragedy struck in Charleston, SC when nine people were shot and killed during bible study inside the Emanuel AME church.

On Raycom’s CBS affiliate WCSC, coverage started less than an hour after the mass shooting and continued through 3am, keeping viewers safe by bringing them every development live during the active manhunt for the shooter.

In the following days, WCSC delivered live coverage on all platforms of every development including the manhunt, capture and court appearance of suspect Dylan Roof, Reverend and Senator Pinckney’s funeral procession, local memorial services, the first service inside the Emanuel AME church following the shooting and President Obama’s visit to Charleston. Most importantly, WCSC put the focus on helping the community heal and positive next steps viewers could take to help the victims’ families and the survivors. WCSC immediately set up phone banks to help raise funds, encouraging pledges to the Mother Emmanuel Hope Fund. WCSC’s parent company, Raycom Media, donated $5,000 to the Hope Fund, on behalf of all of our stations.

The marketing department produced a series of #standwithcharleston messages, reflecting the community’s desire to grieve and heal together. This was continuously updated throughout unfolding events in Charleston. PSAs featuring local preachers encouraging viewers to not be afraid to attend their house of worship aired the weekend following the massacre. WCSC partnered with Harris Teeter to support in-store donations for the victims’ families. The effort raised more than $33,608 over a month’s time and, thanks to Harris Teeter’s matching gift of $30,000, a total of more than $60,000 was divided and given to the Low Country Ministry – Reverend Pinckney fund and Mother Emanuel Hope Fund.

The program provides underprivileged children in the Louisville, KY area with holiday gifts to let them know someone cares. Angel Tree is a huge undertaking that requires intense planning and help from generous donors and volunteers. Donors get to help make a child’s Christmas merry by adopting an “angel”, a child, who needs clothing and toys. The station produces and runs PSAs encouraging Angel adoptions for several weeks and live shots in the community daily for two weeks giving updates on the collection. We also encourage viewers to go to Kroger for food angel donations to provide Christmas dinners. In addition, WAVE conducts and all-day Angel-a-thon, a one-day "push" from WAVE during all newscasts and on all digital platforms to encourage viewers/users to donate to the Angel Tree program. Many WAVE employees spend at least half of their day helping the Salvation Army sort and distribute the Angel Tree donations to area families.
