The idea of making these changes to regulations for radio in regards to payola is a bad idea. By doing this you effectively turn the radio into a jukebox where only certain deep pockets decide what gets played. For radio to act in the best interests of the public it need these disclosures to remain in place. It keeps the whole system a little more honest and transparent. There are still many steps that need to be made before our airwaves are healthy again, but this type of change would be a step in the wrong direction.
