When customers initiate contact with questions about products and services, we verify that they are the customer in question by accessing the record in our electronic file system by the telephone number given to us by the caller. We then ask the customer to give us name as it appears on the billing address for that number. If the caller cannot give us the exact name and address as it appears on the bill then we inform them that we cannot discuss information as listed under that telephone number. We then ask permission to access their records in order to best answer their questions.

When we market our services we do a mass billing to all of our customers. We do not target a specific class of customers. All customers get the same information dealing with the services that we provide or are marketing.

Respectfully submitted,
