Does anyone actually like robo calls? Why would the government make it difficult for telephone service providers to allow customers to block them? A rational person would want the government to encourage customers to make the choice for themselves. Isn't freedom of choice what this country is SUPPOSED to be about?