Telemarketers using robot dialers and spoofing caller ID to local telephone numbers in my area are ridiculous. You get a call from a computer for a product that you did not want, nor are you eligible for. You call the number back and you get someones cell phone that did not call you. This is borderline fraud, as spoofing caller ID is intended to mask your call, not make it seem like someone in your area may be calling for business purposes.