EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

On October 30, 2014, the Commission granted “retroactive waivers” of 47 C.F.R. § 64.1200(a)(4)(iv)—the regulation requiring opt-out notices on fax advertisements sent with “prior express invitation or permission”—to defendants in private TCPA actions and allowed “similarly situated” persons to seek waivers. The Commission stressed that “all future waiver requests will be adjudicated on a case-by-case basis” and that the Commission did not “prejudge the outcome of future waiver requests in the order.” The First Index, Inc. (“First Index”) petition, requesting a similar retroactive waiver, is one of the last of the follow-on waiver petitions contemplated by the October 30, 2014 Order. The Commission should deny the First Index petition.

No good cause exists here to grant Petitioner’s request for a retroactive waiver. Petitioner is not “similarly situated” to other petitioners who were granted waivers. Undisputed evidence shows that Petitioner was not confused about whether a fax sent with the consent of the recipient was required to contain an opt-out notice. On the contrary, Petitioner has admitted in private litigation that it attempted to include opt-out notices on all faxes sent. Moreover, Petitioner’s own actions of including an opt-out provision on the fax advertisement belie its contention that it believed that no opt-out was required. The issue here is that the opt-out notice it included was not compliant. The waiver only applies to those who were confused about whether or not opt-out notices were required on so-called solicited faxes in the first place. Because Petitioner cannot in good faith claim that it was confused as to the legal requirement, Petitioner does not meet the requirements for a waiver.

Regardless of whether the Commission reviews the Petition to determine whether Petitioner was actually confused about the opt-out requirement or will presume the petitioner was confused in the absence of evidence that the petitioner was merely ignorant of the law or had actual knowledge of the opt-out rules, the Commission should deny the Petition. Petitioner’s actions and own testimony demonstrate that it could not have been confused about it the opt-out requirement.
Commenter, Arnold Chapman, is the plaintiff in a private TCPA action pending in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois against petitioner First Index, Inc. (“First Index”). First Index filed a petition on April 29, 2015, seeking a retroactive waiver of the regulation requiring an opt-out notice on fax advertisements sent with “the prior express consent or permission of the recipients or their agents.”

The Commission issued an order on twenty-four similar petitions on October 30, 2014 (the “Opt-Out Order”). That order rejected the challenges to the validity of the Commission’s ability to promulgate and enact the opt-out regulation, but granted retroactive “waivers” purporting to relieve the twenty-four petitioners of liability in private TCPA litigation. The Opt-Out Order allowed other “similarly situated” parties to request waivers, and invited comments on those requests.\(^5\) Arnold Chapman requests the Commission deny First Index’s request for a waiver because First Index knew it was required to place an opt-out notice on its faxes, and did so, although the opt-out notices were non-compliant. Accordingly, First Index is not “similarly situated” to others receiving waivers, and is not entitled to a waiver. The Commission should deny the Petition.

First, the Commission should deny First Index’s request for a petition because it is not similarly situated to the other petitioners whom were granted waivers. As First Index notes in its waiver petition, the Commission granted its waiver to the original petitioners because they had “misplaced confidence” in the order, and thus did not have any legal certainty that an opt-out notice was required for solicited faxes.\(^6\) Unlike other petitioners, First Index was never confused about its obligation to provide an opt-out notice on its fax advertisements. This is evidenced by the fact that many of First Index fax advertisements contain an opt-out provision – albeit an inadequate provision. As a result, First Index’s own actions contradict its contention that it, like the original petitioners, was confused about its requirement to include an opt-out notice in solicited faxes. Therefore, First Index is \textit{not} similarly situated to the other petitioners granted waivers.

\(^5\) Consumer & Governmental Affairs Bureau Seeks Comment on Petitions Concerning the Commission’s Rule on Opt-out Notices on Fax Advertisements, CG Docket Nos. 02-278, 05-338 (Nov. 28, 2014) (“Public Notice”) (“With this Public Notice, we seek comment on the Petitions as described below. Specifically, the Petitioners seek retroactive waivers of the opt-out notice requirement for fax ads they sent where prior express invitation or permission had been obtained from the recipient”).

\(^6\) First Index petition, p. 5, ¶ 4.
Second, no good cause exists here to grant First Index’s request for a retroactive waiver. First Index was not confused about whether a fax sent with consent of the recipient was required to contain an opt-out notice. In fact, First Index included, or attempted to include, opt-out language on all of its faxes, as testified by First Index employees familiar with the faxes. Moreover, as noted above, First Index was not confused about whether a fax sent with the consent of the recipient was required to contain an opt-out notice. This is demonstrated by the fact that First Index’s fax advertisements did contain opt-out provisions. The problem for First Index is not that it was confused about whether or not to include opt-out provisions, but rather that the opt-out provisions used by First Index were deficient. As a result, First Index cannot assert that it was “confused” about whether an opt-out was needed when it included, or attempted to include, opt-out language on its fax advertisements. Instead, First Index requests the Commission overlook the deficient opt-out language included on its faxes. This does not meet the requirements for a waiver, because the waiver only applies to those who were confused about whether or not opt-out notices were required on faxes sent with the prior express consent of recipients, not to those who were confused about the language required on the opt-out notices. Moreover, granting First Index a waiver would undermine the public policy behind the TCPA.

The Commission should deny the petition.
FACTUAL BACKGROUND

First Index was in the business of selling membership subscriptions to its database of manufacturers desiring to purchase custom-manufactured components and the suppliers who might be able to make them. First Index posted requests for quotation for specified components (RFQ") to its online database, and subscribing suppliers could access and bid on them. Defendant made money only by charging for annual membership subscriptions, so Defendant’s marketing was aimed at increasing subscriptions.

First Index started sending advertising faxes to prospective customers in 1996, but kept no records of its fax broadcasts until August 8, 2007, when it hired Global Relay to start archiving its emails in “real or near real time.” The RFQs were only broadcasted when First Index did not have a current subscribing member who could meet the requested specifications. When targets responded to its fax advertisements, First Index would contact them and try to sell them a membership subscription.

An expert hired by the Plaintiff in Chapman v. First Index, No. 09-CV-05555, Robert Biggerstaff, analyzed the emails archived by Global Relay. Using the email archives and matching them to First Index’s records, Biggerstaff identified certain fax broadcasts of First Index’s fax advertisements, including the logs of their transmission and their exact time and date. These identified broadcasts occurred between May 30, 2007 and November 5, 2008. Global Relay’s records showed that Defendant successfully broadcast 388,702 fax advertisements between August 8, 2007 and November 5, 2008. First Index’s fax campaign was not limited to one specific fax, but instead First Index employed many different fax advertisements until it ceased faxing operations in 2009. Many of the fax advertisements used by First Index contained an opt-out provision, but not an opt-out provision that satisfied the requirements of the TCPA.

Arnold Chapman (“Chapman”), the plaintiff in the private litigation, and commenter here, is a resident of Lake County, Illinois. On February 7, 2006 and November 7, 2006, Chapman received two unsolicited fax advertisements inviting him to attend a seminar hosted by First Index. Chapman did not give First Index permission to send it fax advertisements and never had any business relationship with First Index. Chapman subsequently filed a lawsuit in the Northern District of Illinois, alleging the subject fax advertisements violated the TCPA.

Chapman moved for class certification on February 1, 2013. Based on the state of the law at the time, Chapman defined the class by reference to permission, but argued in his papers that it should be certified because none of First Index’s identified faxes included legally compliant opt-out notices. First Index did not address nor refute Chapman’s argument that First Index’s fax advertisements contained insufficient opt-out notices. The court ultimately denied class certification and granted First Index’s motion to dismiss without ever addressing the “opt-out” theory. This case is currently up on appeal to the Seventh Circuit.
ARGUMENT

I. First Index is not “similarly situated” to other petitioners who were granted waivers.

In its Opt-Out Order, the Commission found that “good cause” existed to grant the twenty-four waivers because an “inconsistency between a footnote contained in the Junk Fax Order and the rule caused confusion or misplaced confidence regarding the applicability of this requirement to faxes sent to those recipients who provided prior express permission.” These statements suggest the Commission found that the twenty-four petitioners covered by the order were entitled to waivers because, prior to sending their faxes, they did in fact (1) receive inadequate notice, (2) read the regulation and the footnote, and (3) suffer actual “confusion or misplaced confidence” as a result. Moreover, the Commission noted that “nothing in the record here demonstrat[es] that the petitioners understood that they did, in fact, have to comply with the opt-out notice requirement . . . but nonetheless failed to do so.” The Commission also emphasized that “simple ignorance” of the law “is not grounds for a waiver.”

Indeed, several original petitioners “contend[ed] that the Commission offered confusing and conflicting statements regarding the applicability of the rule to solicited faxes.” Thus, the crux of the Commission’s decision to grant a waiver was the determination that the inadequate notice of the opt-out requirement and the confusing language in the statute resulted in “a confusing situation for businesses or one that caused businesses mistakenly to believe that the opt-out requirement did not apply.”12 Due to those circumstances, the Commission also permitted “similarly situated parties” to seek similar waivers.13

First Index, however, is not similarly situated to the parties who have received waivers from the Commission. Despite its contention to the contrary, First Index never mistakenly believed that the opt-out requirement did not apply to the fax advertisements it sent out. This is evidenced by the fact First Index included, or attempted to include, opt-out language on its fax advertisements.14 Additionally, many of the advertisements First Index sent out contained (inadequate) opt-out notices.15 It cannot then be stated that First Index was confused about the requirement to include an “opt-out” notice, as it would not have otherwise had a policy to include opt-out notices on its fax advertisements. Therefore, First Index is missing the key characteristic that sets it apart from the original petitioners.

First Index also erroneously argues that it is similarly situated because it had express permission to send the fax advertisements and it is subject to a lawsuit that seeks substantial damages under the TCPA.16 If this was the standard, then anyone who had express permission to send fax advertisements and had suit filed against him or her would be entitled to this waiver. The Commission made clear, however, that parties are similarly situated when they “mistakenly [believe] that the opt-out requirement did not apply.”\textsuperscript{17} As this is clearly not the case, First Index cannot be considered “similarly situated” to the original petitioners, and its waiver request should be denied.

\textbf{II. No good cause exists to grant the First Index waiver.}

\textbf{A. First Index was not confused about the opt-out notice requirement.}

No good cause exists to grant the First Index petition because First Index was never “confused” nor did it have “misplaced confidence” regarding whether opt-out notices was required on its fax advertisements. Instead, it is clear that First Index knew that the law required an opt-out notice on all faxed advertisements. In the Opt-Out Order, the Commission noted that “nothing in the record here demonstrat[es] that the petitioners understood that they did, in fact, have to comply with the opt-out notice requirement . . . but nonetheless failed to do so.”\textsuperscript{18} Yet here, the record contains such evidence. First Index employees testified unequivocally that it was the practice of First Index to include opt-out language on any fax advertisements sent out.\textsuperscript{19}

Accordingly, the numerous fax advertisements sent out by First Index included opt-out provisions—albeit non-compliant ones.\textsuperscript{20} There is no evidence that First Index was “confused” or “uncertain” about the requirement to include an opt-out notice. The only issue is whether the notice that was included was compliant, \textsuperscript{20} See First Index Faxes, attached as Exhibit A.

which is not grounds for a waiver.\textsuperscript{21} Accordingly, there is no “good cause” to grant First Index a waiver.

\textbf{B. Granting a waiver is against the public interest and would undermine the TCPA’s policy objectives.}

First Index argues that it is in the public interest to grant the waiver because it was confused about the opt-out requirement and it is vulnerable to substantial costs or damages.\textsuperscript{22} As discussed above, however, First Index was not confused about the opt-out requirement, and at most, was confused about how to comply with the opt-out requirement – something that the Commission has made very clear does not warrant a waiver.\textsuperscript{23} Moreover, the Commission made clear that “the risk of substantial liability in private rights of action is, by itself, [not] an inherently adequate ground for waiver”.\textsuperscript{24} Thus, the evidence that First Index included deficient opt-out language on many of its fax advertisements, testimony from First Index’s own employees, and the Commission’s own language establish that a waiver is not appropriate here. Therefore, it is not in the public interest to grant First Index’s petition.

In fact, granting First Index a waiver would actually undermine the TCPA’s policy objectives. First, it would set the standard that anyone who had express permission to send the fax advertisement and was subject to a lawsuit would be a “similarly situated” person entitled to a waiver. This broad definition of “similarly situated person” would essentially grant a waiver to almost anyone who had express permission and had suit filed against it, regardless of whether they were actually confused by the regulation’s language. This broad standard would undermine the entire waiver procedure, and provide cover for anyone who violated the opt-out requirement.

\textsuperscript{21} See Opt-Out Order, ¶ 33 (noting that substantial compliance with the requisite opt-out language does not suffice).
\textsuperscript{22} First Index petition, pp. 6-7.

Second, it would allow for anyone who “substantially conformed” with the opt-out requirement to receive a waiver. As detailed above, First Index had a policy to, and did, include opt-out notices on its fax advertisements – albeit deficient ones. Therefore, if there was any confusion for First Index, it was not in whether to include an opt-out notice, but in how to include an opt-out notice. As the Commission has stated, “full compliance is required.”\(^\text{25}\) Moreover, the Commission rejected acceptance of a substantial compliance that would result in a different legal standard being applied to determine compliance.\(^\text{26}\)

Granting First Index a waiver would allow for a petitioner who only substantially conformed to the opt-out requirement to be absolved of liability. This would, in turn, result in a different legal standard being applied to determined compliance, in direct contravention to the Commission’s Order. In turn, a granting of First Index’s waiver request would undermine the TCPA’s policy objectives, and should be denied.

\(^{25}\) Opt-Out Order, ¶ 33.
\(^{26}\) Opt-Out Order, ¶ 33 (Rejecting any decision that creates a different legal standard being applied to determine compliance with the opt-out requirement).
III. Regardless of whether the standard for a waiver from §64.1200(a)(4)(iv) is actual confusion or presumed confusion, the First Index petition does not meet the standard.

The public notice seeks comments “consistent with the guidelines set forth in the Fax Order.” The Opt-Out Order states that the lack of notice in the 2005 rulemaking and an inconsistent footnote in the 2006 Junk Fax Order “led to confusion or misplaced confidence on the part of petitioners,” justifying a waiver. It also states these factors “caused businesses mistakenly to believe that the opt-out notice requirement did not apply.” These statements suggest the Commission found that the twenty-four petitioners covered by the order were entitled to waivers because, prior to sending their faxes, they did in fact (1) receive inadequate notice, (2) read the regulation and the footnote, and (3) suffer actual “confusion or misplaced confidence” as a result.

At the same time, the order states these factors “may have contributed to confusion or misplaced confidence,” that the combination of factors “presumptively establishes good cause for retroactive waiver,” and that “nothing in the record here demonstrat[es] that the petitioners understood that they did, in fact, have to comply with the opt-out notice requirement . . . but nonetheless failed to do so.” The Commission also emphasized that “simple ignorance” of the law “is not grounds for a waiver.” These statements suggest the Commission found the regulation objectively “confusing,” giving rise to a presumption that the twenty-four petitioners were “confused,” and that Plaintiffs failed to rebut that presumption with evidence the petitioners knew opt-out notices were required or were simply ignorant of the regulation. Regardless of the standard by which the Commission reviews the petitions, the First Index petition must be denied.

Here, it does not matter if the standard is actual confusion or a rebuttable presumption of confusion, as First Index falls short of both. The testimony of First Index employees and the fact that First Index included opt-out notices on its fax advertisements demonstrate that First Index was not confused about the TCPA’s opt-out requirement, but rather simply failed to correctly adhere to it. Therefore, the Commission cannot find that First Index was actually confused or presumptively confused, and should deny First Index’s petition.

CONCLUSION

The Commission should deny the First Index petition for waiver because it is not similarly-situated to parties granted a waiver of the opt-out notice requirements. Moreover, First Index was not confused about the need to include opt-out language on its faxes, as evidenced by the fact that it included opt-out language on its fax advertisements. Furthermore, granting First Index’s petition would, in fact, undermine the policy objectives of the TCPA. Therefore, the Commission should deny the petition.

Why compete against India, China & other Low Cost Countries?

While our competitors open their projects to suppliers worldwide, First Index works exclusively with buyers in the USA and Canada who want to source domestically.

We have worked closely with our 15,000+ buyer organizations for over 15 years and know what they are looking for:

✓ Limited of shops on their projects
✓ Domestic suppliers only for new business relationships
✓ Fair price
✓ Quality work & on-time delivery

If you are interested to find new customers close to you that can keep you busy, please complete the form below and fax it to 509-570-0415 or email us at info@firstindex.com. You can also contact us at 1-888-535-8583 ext 126.

Our Open House is designed for Owners, General Managers, Sales Directors, or anybody who is responsible for generating new business or filling excess capacity at job shops specializing in Machining, Tooling Fabrication, Plastics, or Electronics.

ALSO:
- Discuss with successful First Index members (shop owners like yourself) their methods of winning hundreds of thousands of dollars in new business from being a member with First Index!
- Meet with colleagues in the manufacturing sector in a casual, productive setting.

FIRST INDEX AND YOU:

First Index specializes in helping job shops win new business. Every year our research team makes over 100,000 phone calls to manufacturers with the goal of helping them find suitable suppliers for custom machining, fabrication, plastics, and electronics work that they outsource. Come learn why more than 850 job shops across the United States have already become members of First Index. Our representatives consult with many of the largest OEMs in the country in an effort to help them streamline their outsourcing efforts.

FREE OPEN HOUSE ACTIVITIES:

- BROWSE CURRENT PROJECTS AND RFQ’S
  You can look through detailed listings and prints of over 1,500 jobs generated by our research team in the past month!

- ACCESS OUR CUSTOM DATABASE AND SOFTWARE
  Learn why many large OEMs are purchasing First Index’s custom findFAST PRO software platform for outsourcing.

- ELIMINATE COLD CALLING WITH FIRST INDEX LEADS
  Re-focus your valuable time on discussing genuine opportunities with buyers expecting your phone call.

HAVE YOU CONSOLIDATED YOUR BACKLOG?

A recent ISM Report on Business confirms the tendency observed since the beginning of 2008: the manufacturing sector failed to grow.

“This completes the weakest quarterly performance for the U.S. economy since Q2 of 2003”.

Have a look at First Index, because we can help you stay busy and build your backlog to a comfortable level.

- The First Index Sourcing Staff is in contact with Buyers on a daily basis
- We limit the number of shops on the same project
- Domestic Buyers looking for new business relationships

To learn more about what First Index has to help you build relationships with new buyers, please complete the form below and fax it to 509-570-0415 or email us at info@firstindex.com. You can also contact us at 1-888-535-8583 ext 126.

FIRST INDEX & YOU:
First Index specializes in helping job shops win new business. Every year our research team makes over 100,000 phone calls to manufacturers with the goal of helping them find suitable suppliers for custom machining, fabrication, plastics, and electronics work that they outsource. Come learn why more than 700 job shops across the United States have already become members of First Index. Our representatives consult with many of the largest OEMs in the country in an effort to help them streamline their outsourcing efforts.

You are personally invited to attend a First Index Open House at the

Sofitel Hotel Chicago O’Hare
5550 N River Road
Rosemont, IL 60018

Wednesday, July 9th – Thursday, July 10th 2008

Our Open House is designed for Owners, General Managers, Sales Directors, or anybody who is responsible for generating new business or filling excess capacity at job shops specializing in Machining, Fabrication, Plastics, Tooling or Sheet Metal Fabrication.

At our events in 2005, 2006, 2007 and 2008 we assisted 55+ New Members gain a brand new customer at the time of this event. Shop owners walked away from the event with either a P.O. in hand or an appointment to visit with a brand new customer that month. Since this time approximately $6 MILLION Dollars+ has been awarded to these First Index members!!! One First Index member is doing $200,000 a month in business from one customer First Index introduced them to!

Come and find out how you can be next...

ALSO:
- Discuss with successful First Index members (shop owners like yourself) their methods of winning hundreds of thousands of dollars in new business from being a member with First Index!
- Meet with colleagues in the manufacturing sector in a casual, productive setting.

FIRST INDEX AND YOU:
First Index specializes in helping job shops win new business. Every year our research team makes over 100,000 phone calls to manufacturers with the goal of helping them find suitable suppliers for custom machining, fabrication, plastics, and electronics work that they outsource. Come learn why more than 850 job shops across the United States have already become members of First Index. Our representatives consult with many of the largest OEMs in the country in an effort to help them streamline their outsourcing efforts.

FREE OPEN HOUSE ACTIVITIES:
BROWSE CURRENT PROJECTS AND RFQ’S
You can look through detailed listings and prints of over 1,500 jobs generated by our research team in the past month!

ACCESS OUR CUSTOM DATABASE AND SOFTWARE
Learn why many large OEMs are purchasing First Index’s custom findFAST PRO software platform for outsourcing.

ELIMINATE COLD CALLING WITH FIRST INDEX LEADS
Re-focus your valuable time on discussing genuine opportunities with buyers expecting your phone call.

HOW DEEP IS YOUR BACKLOG?

The February 2008 ISM Report on Business showed the second decline in the last 3 months: the manufacturing sector failed to grow during the month of February. Manufacturers’ order backlogs continue to erode as the New Orders Index remained below 50 percent for the third consecutive month. The major concern is rising prices and falling volume.

At First Index, we can help you stay busy and build your backlog to a comfortable level.

- The First Index Sourcing Staff is in contact with Buyers on a daily basis
- They know all the buyers and they follow up every RFQ to make sure a successful process has occurred
- We do not allow Buyers to incessantly post RFQs without providing feedback or awarding work to our supplier members

To learn more about what First Index has to help you build relationships with new buyers, please complete the form below and fax it to 509-570-0415 or email us at info@firstindex.com. You can also contact us at 1-888-535-8583 ext 126.

How do you get new business?

Find Better Customers, Faster: Accelerate the Sales Cycle with First Index

San Jose Regional Appointments and Site Visits
(Limited number of appointments are still available)

Who: Shop Owners/General Managers/Sales Directors or anyone responsible for generating new business or filling open capacity at shops that specialize in Machining, Tooling, Fabrication, Plastics or Electronics.

What: Senior First Index staff will be in your area to share the success stories from our partner suppliers, to help you identify opportunities that fit you, and explain how partnering with First Index can jumpstart the sales process and build new customers. Representatives will be at various locations from Redwood City to Santa Clara (and surrounding areas) to discuss your needs and the types of projects you are looking to bring into the shop. We will come to your shop and meet face to face to better understand your capabilities and expertise. Learn how we can help take advantage of today’s market (and some of the hottest industries and companies) to ensure a solid customer base for tomorrow.

When: April 14th through 16th, 2008

How: Schedules are filling up quickly: call us toll-free at (888) 535-8583 ext. 126 to RSVP

HOW WILL THE ELECTION AFFECT YOUR BUSINESS?

Uncertainty over the presidential election and the ‘recession’ we are entering may affect your current customers.

➢ Do you have a plan in place to bring in new customers to make sure you are not impacted?
➢ Can you afford to gamble that it won’t affect you?
➢ What if they cut their next order in half, or consolidate with another vendor?

Make sure you are prepared now!

We can put you in front of manufacturers today. We have over $170 million in current open RFQ’s. The real value lies in the relationships you will build with those OEM’s. Each one is potentially a long term repeat customer that will grow your business and help keep it strong!

We emphasize communication and value as keys to building a relationship. Our buyers are aware of ‘value vs. price’! Our comprehensive business development programs help you to streamline the sales cycle and open doors to major companies in a fraction of the usual time. We will help you find ‘good fit’ companies to do business with today!

(pre-registration required)

Wednesday, December 5th-- from 10 A.M. to 6 P.M.
Thursday, December 6th—from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M.

- Our Open House is designed for Owners, General Managers, Sales Directors, or anyone who is responsible for generating new business or filling excess capacity at job shops specializing in all facets of Manufacturing.

At our last events, we assisted TMA Members gain a brand new customer at the time of this event.  TMA members walked away from the event with either a P.O. in hand or an appointment to visit with a brand new customer that month.

Since this time at least $5 Million dollars has been awarded to these TMA/First Index members!!! Two First Index/TMA members are doing $2+ Million this past Year in business from one customer First Index introduced them to!

Come and find out how you can be next…

- Meet with colleagues in the manufacturing sector in a casual, productive setting.
- Discuss the benefits of our partnership with the Tooling & Manufacturing Association.
- Meet directly with successful US suppliers using the First Index service.

FIRST INDEX & YOU:

First Index specializes in helping job shops win new business. Every year our research team makes over 100,000 phone calls to manufacturers with the goal of helping them find suitable suppliers for custom machining, fabrication, plastics, and electronics work that they outsource. Come learn why more than 900 job shops across the United States have already become members of First Index. Our representatives consult with many of the largest OEMs in the country in an effort to help them streamline their outsourcing efforts.

- Our Open House Seminar is designed for BUYERS and SUPPLIERS. Owners, General Managers, Sales Directors, Procurement Directors or anyone who is responsible for sourcing new suppliers and/or generating new business and filling excess capacity at job shops specializing in Machining, Tooling, Fabrication, Plastics, or Electronics.

Meet with colleagues in the manufacturing sector in a casual, productive setting.
- Discuss the benefits of our partnership between the Tooling and Manufacturing Association
- A DIRECT TWO HOUR MEETING and CONSULTATION WITH OUR SENIOR STAFF on New Business Development tools in the 21 Century.

FIRST INDEX and YOU:
First Index specializes in helping job shops find new business. Every year our research team makes over 80,000 phone calls to manufacturers with the goal of helping them find suitable suppliers for custom machining, fabrication, plastics, and electronics work that they outsource. Come learn why more than 700 job shops across the United States and Canada have already become members of First Index. Our representatives consult with many of the largest OEMs in the country in an effort to help them streamline their outsourcing efforts.

FREE New Business Development ACTIVITIES:
- BROWSE CURRENT PROJECTS AND RFQ’S
  You can look through detailed listings and prints of over 1,000 jobs generated by our research team in the past month!

- ACCESS OUR CUSTOM DATABASE AND SOFTWARE
  Learn why many large OEMs are purchasing First Index’s custom findFAST PRO software platform for outsourcing.

- ELIMINATE COLD CALLING WITH FIRST INDEX RFQ’s
  Re-focus your valuable time on discussing genuine opportunities with buyers expecting your phone call.

Regional Appointments and Site Visits
Purpose: Supplier Profiling for regional and global OEMs

Anaheim – Fullerton – Irvine
October 6th to 9th

Many vendors in your region are over-capacity and unable to take on new contracts. First Index is looking to identify Machine shops, Fabricators, Plastics and Electronics suppliers that have open or growing capacity – for OEMs that have immediate needs.

Representatives will be at various locations from Anaheim to Irvine (and surrounding areas) the week of October 6th to meet with shops and discuss our needs and the types of projects we typically help to source. We'll come to your shop and meet face to face to better understand your capabilities and expertise. Learn how we can help take advantage of today's market to ensure a solid customer base for tomorrow.

Each company will have access to:
- Our research regarding trends in OEM purchasing and Buyer Forecasting
- A formal presentation on First Index and the thousands of OEMs who rely on us
- Details of our enhanced supplier support and increased access to buyers - NEW
- Real prints—from companies in your area who use First Index to find suppliers
- Examples of real shops who have won significant work and relationships using First Index
- Inside information on how to find success with the First Index tools – from shops that have!

Some of the Companies in your region who have used First Index recently include:

- Goodrich Aerospace
- Boeing Co.
- AAE Aerospace
- SeaBotix Inc.
- Senior Aerospace (Ketema)
- Fender Musical Instruments
- Boeing Space Systems
- HP

Please call or fax First Index to learn more

If you would like to find out more about participating in our limited network of suppliers, please call: 1-888-535-8583 x 130 to see an updated package of information.

If you would like to arrange an appointment please fill out the information below.

FAX TO: 509-570-0415 - Appointments are available on a “first come first serve” basis.
