Comment on ISP's controlling internet content.
Please do not allow this to happen. It is no more appropriate that the internet providers control the content of the internet than it would be for the government to try to do so. To allow this would be the slippery slop leading to total control of information available to the people the the united states. The true worth of the internet is the unrestricted access to information, good and bad.
Best Regards, Robert M. Campbell