It protects my freedom of choice on the internet, and also protects other's abilities to get started.

I can choose to view whatever I choose to without discrimination from my ISP and other corporations.

It allows developers to improve upon old things without big corporations enforcing what can and can't be done.

It allows freedom on the internet, plain and simple. To remove this freedom would be to handicap progress and needed improvements for our future generations.