STATEMENT OF
COMMISSIONER AJIT PAI

The AWS-3 auction taught us some important lessons. One of them is that our small business, or “designated entity” (DE), program has become a playpen for corporate giants. Indeed, allowing a company like DISH—with annual revenues of approximately $14 billion and a market capitalization of over $32 billion—to benefit from over $3 billion in taxpayer-funded discounts on AWS-3 spectrum makes a mockery of this small-business program.1 And DISH was not alone.

Abuse of the DE program has robbed actual small businesses of the spectrum they need to serve their local communities.2 Small, rural operators from Missouri to North Carolina recently explained that the DE program is having a “devastating impact” on their ability to obtain spectrum and compete.3 Think about that. This taxpayer-funded program is now being used by Fortune 500 companies to disadvantage the very small companies it was intended to help. This must end.

The results of the AWS-3 auction have spurred a broad-based consensus against this anticompetitive arbitrage.4 And this Public Notice tees up a wide range of proposals that, if adopted, would end this corporate welfare. I want to thank my colleagues for accommodating my request that we put all options on the table, including strictly limiting how much large companies can invest in a designated entity, capping the taxpayer subsidy that any designated entity can obtain during an auction, prohibiting coordinated bidding, and fundamentally revising our attribution rules.

If we are going to heed the lessons of the AWS-3 auction, the work cannot end with this Public Notice. I look forward to working with my fellow Commissioners and Congress to ensure that we implement fundamental reforms to the program. We must have a singular focus in this proceeding: We must close any loopholes that could allow big business to rip off the American taxpayer, not create new avenues for abuse, as the FCC proposed last year over my dissent.⁵

Moreover, it remains imperative that we closely scrutinize whether participants in the AWS-3 auction complied with our rules. Serious questions have been raised on this score, and my position is simple. Any entity that violated the Commission’s DE regulations must not be allowed to receive taxpayer-funded discounts.
