

Narrative Description

The CableLabs Wireless R&D team will utilize the FCC experimental license to conduct wireless research and development of new services, new technology development, deployment validation, performance validation, proof-of-concept assessment, and product development.