TARIFF USERS GUIDE (Cont'd)MAINTAINING THE TARIFF (Cont'd)Keeping The Tariff Current (Cont'd)

6. There are several ways of changing the effective date of a tariff page.
  - If only a few pages require new effective dates, the pages may be reissued with revised effective dates.
  - When a change in the effective date of multiple tariffs is required a Tariff Supplement may be issued. Supplements are numbered sequentially. These supplements are an integral part of the tariff and it is suggested that they be filed in the front of the tariff, preceding the Title Page. The status of each Supplement is also given on Page 1, the first Check Sheet. Effective supplement numbers are given in the text near the top of the page, just under the heading CHECK SHEET.

The supplement will explain what material or pages are affected by the supplement's action and give the new dates and action involved. To keep track of dates changed by a supplement, it is suggested that the effective date printed on the affected tariff pages have a line drawn through it, with the new date written just below it. An explanatory note, such as "Supp. #10", written next to the new date.

What To Do When Everything Else Fails

1. If a tariff has become outdated and does not contain all of the current effective or pending pages, there is a method to make it current.
2. Make sure that you have the latest revision of the first page of the check sheet. Issuing Carriers can determine the number of the latest revision by visiting the NECA website (www.neca.org/member-services/tariff-5) and clicking on "Recent Filings". Both pending and recently effective pages may be viewed and printed as needed. (T)

TARIFF USERS GUIDE (Cont'd)MAINTAINING THE TARIFF (Cont'd)What To Do When Everything Else Fails (Cont'd)

3. If you have the latest revision of Check Sheet, Page 1, examine the other check sheets to determine that they are the latest revisions. The latest revision number of all the other check sheets is given on Check Sheet, Page 1.
4. Working from the latest revision of the check sheets, verify that each page has the same revision number as that given on the check sheets. If several revisions of the same page exist, do not discard.

If the latest revision listed cannot be found, or if pages are missing, or if a page in the tariff contains the incorrect revision date, view the tariff on-line (www.neca.org/member-services/tariff-5). (T)
Click on "Recent Filings" to view the chart of all pending and recently effective tariff revisions. Print any pages that you are missing.

5. If the revision number corresponds with the check sheet, examine the effective date in the lower right-hand corner. Verify that the material has not been deferred or rejected by issuance of a more recent page revision or supplement. If the date has passed and notification has not been received to the contrary, that page is effective and all previous revisions may be discarded.

If the effective date has not been reached, the page is pending and a previous revision is in effect. Examine the next previous revision to see if its effective date has passed, or if it is pending. It may be necessary to examine several previously revised pages, since there may be more than one page pending. Upon reaching the currently effective page, all previous revisions may be discarded.

6. At this point, all effective and pending pages should be in the tariff.
